

idiotmethod

My Thinking Tree!

Let's grow your Thinking Tree! Start by asking a real question you've been curious about. Then, take your best shot at answering it. From there, ask another question that comes from your answer—just like how branches grow from a tree.

Q1. What's a real question you've been wondering about?

(Example: Why do some people seem more confident than others?)

Q2. What do you think the answer might be?

(It's okay if you're not sure— try to explain your thoughts)

Q3. What's a new question that comes from your answer above?

(Example: If some people seem more confident than others, what causes that difference?)

idiotmethod

Q4. What do you think the answer to your new question might be?

Q5. What's another question that comes from your last answer?

Q6. How did it feel to ask and answer your own questions like this?
(Optional)

Q7. Do you want to keep growing your Thinking Tree?
(Choose one)

Yes, I have more questions and answers!

No, I'm finished for now.

idiotmethod

Wrap-Up

Q8. What was your favourite question you came up with?

Q9. Is there anything else you're still curious about after doing this activity?
